

koories and psychology reconciliation, education, and professional practice

The Department of Psychology at Victoria University, in conjunction with the Board of Community Psychologists, invite psychologists and other interested people to participate in a two day conference concerned with issues of Aboriginality and psychology, in this, the International Year of Indigenous People.

The program will involve speakers from the Koorie community and from the psychology profession.

Keynote speaker - Ms Pat Dudgeon

A psychology trained West Australian Aborigine, Ms Dudgeon will explore the validity of Western psychology with respect to the Aboriginal people.

Keynote sessions and workshops will include:

- Reconciliation
- Education in Psychology
- Women's business
- Family reunion
- Mental Health and Addiction

This conference will also include the Australian Psychology Society (Victorian Branch) Annual General Meeting.
