

13th Trans-Tasman
Community Psychology Conference
MELBOURNE | 20 – 22 APRIL 2017
Critical Conversations

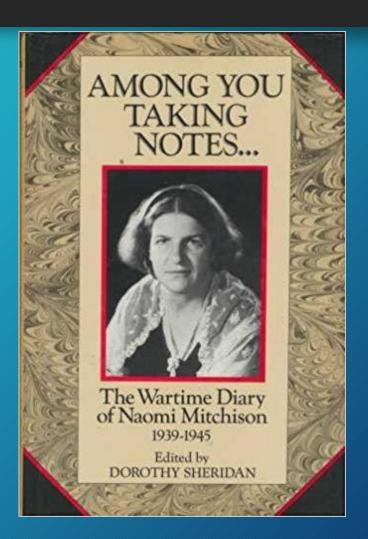

Naomi Mitchison

Imagining and Creating Community in a World War Two Scottish Fishing Village

Hilary Lapsley, PhD

"One of the great subversive thinkers and peaceable transgressors of the twentieth century"

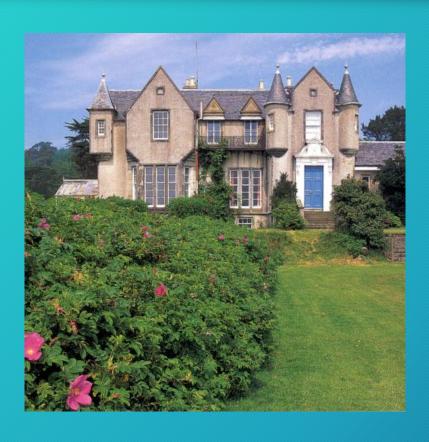

• Ursula Le Guin, science fiction writer, on Naomi Mitchison

Naomi Mitchison in 1939

- Historical novelist, poet, intellectual, socialist and feminist, mother of five, married to a wealthy socialist London lawyer
- Leaving behind 1930s London life: intellectual, bohemian, literary, left-wing, feminist circles
- Context: disillusionment of the Left at the end of the '30s
- Newly at the helm of a landed estate in Carradale, Kintyre

The 'Big House'

- Scottish baronial style
- Extensive gardens
- Acreage in farm & rough land
- Hunting and fishing rights
- Staff included gardeners, gamekeepers, domestic staff
- Tied cottages on the estate
- 'Laird' of Carradale community from feudal times

Equipped with a manifesto for social change: Mitchison's 'Moral Basis of Politics' (1938)

- In hierarchical societies people are used as means to ends; leaders don't value human happiness
- 'Right relationships' between people depend on social equality and respect (between women and men, across the classes)
- Against ownership: love is a 'social glue' but not 'the binding, blinding kind of love that wants to own other people'
- Social change can only be imagined by those who can manage to see outside themselves' ...art and literature can foster empathy
- Wealthy people need to acknowledge that they have a stake in unequal social arrangements

Mitchison's Carradale project...a test-bed for her social and political ideals

- Her wartime Carradale sojourn evolved into a project
 - Could socialist democracy work in a small community?
 - Harnessing her energies during a difficult time
- Importance of wartime diary she kept for Mass Observation
 - 'a chiel's among you taking notes' (Robbie Burns)
- 'I am doing work here, trying to give people other ideas of human relationship' (Diary, 21/1/1942)

SHIP AND

I history to the a sice was, realising tidtly country and the maintenance. The others were evolve not been, but I has not many all. Figurities was not be taken to less after the Charge conferen and Palanting, the latter and go to believe here for a term, not the femer west Levro nothing. Tray more fell about the our close an end to work her bate; a I tile later I the to every it was 76 onte try to 11.15. As as if observe to Characters theating, easiely like a very old ear, I kept on conterfut what the old labour made bloading, shills for an all money to see it all at fully. The bry London ale and entries, though N. was long long a little, of the ant sain said has could be all then to these said Then he's brain drains and of Chickenst to May content to here but decemby here believe in have the hing storted Danny target it off also senses said Thenkyon. The sales hear's winted to cone through, I make using the assacceptally openful and safe for prostures the loss our, and settle the unit light but implies blog. When a bit she because or my, a octopic in the halos, and Table of all our say gring, that to be dr course would got hope too. Then tall Third to the Action in Section 1 styll g that too, but 17 ye was no seeps as. This the wides liber at 1

they wend now not every Dat port of to his they been, In the develop were the big boys were or thing has a acting perture and ing passey. I are feeling stor, and or was a. F and heat pert to Main, but has termines but just both - we followed home. Forms time has brought but blongs, ciditives every their with talking magnify at loose very made are turn on made, for will on win courty; must elbraithe. The rais to it's con- the se was spine I had are a soing to so? He seeped larg orthogonality than byte been the sight and in times he exist it was partially, and an elected then and over he will be about anyone and he would distant on alternating of suplehes her possibles, that he would't fight, but would be used as ational laportance of he was her such attached to things and people as t ble to be a slear partition. They believe ourse the producting of dress effer lauflots in this or books on Green teach, on they we talked there Fords people are - fortened Swaper and Jackins and all that sale Benela was going to be reactedly to have so thinken her little how to the wir does not be but.

Or hade one every set an indepent, by action to action a manufacturing implies better not with rule than there. In such it was, there a lab be much it is est, but he you who have not it below algeb.

Noting Disk wold than alrea y come of the young histories some may what they'd so to become if they get not of them - met just littler. That services little it was all in fun low, but might get market. Its father was being very contraction.

to locate to at helps and from the children bet, shourfully naving things but the town are more because one of the address were secretarity to the address were secretarity to the support of and ever aging bets, if the paid that our fulse, I dill I made your reserver to the afternoon are selected than.

What steps did she take to bring about change?

- Treated locals as equals
- Gave locals free access to house and lands
- Worked alongside them (fishing, farming, community projects)
- Initiated building a community hall on donated land
- Engaged with them through her playwriting and poetry
- Engaged with them in political activism (e.g. Labour party)
- Learnt from them about Gaelic and Scottish history and culture
- Undercut traditional laird role (poaching, giving away parcels of land)
- Intimate friendships with fishing and forestry workers
- Recorded the wartime community in her diary

Looking back on her 'ground up' efforts in Carradale

- '[The diary] is full of hope for a new kind of world, for something different, happier, more honest, for a new relationship between people who had been cut off from one another by money, power and class structure. It was the same kind of vision that people have had all over the world, whenever they began to question the morality of the system they happen to live under.'
- 'But the bright vision fades, always, always.'
- 'I tried to begin the change with personal relations, but Dick, my husband, working with Beveridge and Cole on the political and economic foundations of the welfare state, got much further in the end.'

Her conclusions on community development

Later experience of Scottish local government and working in an African community saw Mitchison putting the case for a ground-up approach, as compared to imposing change from above:

'[Community development is not] mucking about with the lives of other people...so that their patterns of development are broken and bruised and then substituting some other pattern which may well be easier to handle for the outsider and is thus supposed to be superior'

'What Community Development is Not', Community Development Journal, 1967

The bond to Carradale

• Naomi Mitchison did not return to live in London after World War Two ended in 1945, but remained in Carradale where she died in 1999 at the age of 101. She was much loved in her community and continued to work on their behalf, as well as for Scottish Highland development, Scottish nationalism, Africa and world peace. She is recognised as one of Scotland's finest writers.

Let's consider all this in a critical community psychology frame?

- Monterey declaration (2001)) included
 - CPs need a critical vision of the good society, not just current norms
 - What do you think about NM trying to impose her radical vision?
 - CPs need to understand how power works on individuals through institutions
 - Can NM's account of community change contribute anything to psychology?
 - CPs should facilitate conscientization of themselves as well as communities
 - How possible is it to give away power?
 - CPs should work in collaborative partnerships
 - Were her relationships with local men unethical? (she saw herself as a change agent but not a professional one)